QUESTION	ANSWER
“I am and SCC/SPC qualified coach and previously completed my play test for this qualification. Do I need to complete the CTQ Readiness Test if I do not meet the rating/WTN requirements”?	The old play test is not valid as evidence of playing standard for the CTQ course. If you do not meet the rating/WTN requirements outlined within the application, you will need to complete the CTQ Readiness Test for free as part of your application. Instructions on what to film and how to submit your readiness test can be found within “Section 2 – Eligibility Requirements” – “CTQ Readiness Test”
Why is LTA Accredited+ status a requirement for the CTQ?	“LTA Accredited+ status demonstrates a coach's commitment to maintaining high professional standards, ongoing learning and continuing professional development (CPD). As future tutors will play an important role in developing and supporting other coaches, we expect applicants to demonstrate these same professional values through their own coaching practice. As part of the CTQ application review, we will consider applicants' accreditation status alongside their recent engagement with CPD and professional learning.
Can I still apply if I am LTA Accredited but not Accredited+?	LTA Accredited+ is an entry requirement for the CTQ. However, we recognise that there may be exceptional circumstances that have prevented an applicant from achieving or maintaining Accredited+ status, such as living and coaching outside the UK. Applicants with a substantial and valid reason for not holding Accredited+ status may still be considered on a case-by-case basis. They should provide an explanation of their circumstances as part of their application. Any successful applicant granted an exception would be required to achieve LTA Accredited+ status by a specified deadline before the course begins. This deadline would be communicated as part of the offer process.
